President's Report

Election Day Lessons

As the presidential election dragged on, countless news reports detailed the legal twists and turns that seemingly changed by the hour.

Along the way, the nation got a refresher course in the electoral college. In fact, media surveys revealed that a sizeable number of Americans weren't even aware that the U.S. utilizes electoral votes, rather than the "popular" count, to determine the presidency.

It's a riveting and historic story, one that stirred up innumerable emotions and opinions even as Election Day gave way to Thanksgiving.

Yet, I hope that the complexities surrounding the Florida recount didn't obscure what is perhaps the most important lesson we all should have learned from this episode: Every vote counts.

Set aside for a moment all of the legal wrangling—not to mention all of those comedic, pretend ballots that probably showed up at some point on your fax machine or email!

The power of a single vote is highlighted by the fact that Florida law mandated the initial recount precisely because the tally was so close. If enough supporters of either leading candidate had voted, then the election would have been determined without all the prolonged activities after November 7.

Every vote counts. Your vote counts.

That's a lesson that all Seafarers should take to heart, whether it's for a local, state or national election or for an SIU election like the one currently under way. Don't sit on the sidelines in any election and let other voices be heard while you remain silent. Don't assume that your single vote can't make a difference.

Study the issues, study the candidates and cast your votes.

We work in a heavily regulated industry. Our day-to-day functions and our long-range survival continually will be affected by politicians and the people they appoint.

It may be something as routine as upgrading your rating, or something as historic as the construction of new U.S.-flag cruise ships and tankers. In every case, the opportunities for growth are tied to politics, one way or another.

Similarly, the SIU's direction starts with you, the individual member. You elect officials to lead the way in strengthening our union. You decide the outcome of proposed constitutional amendments such as those on the current SIU ballot.

It must have been a sickening feeling for the people in Florida who wanted a particular presidential candidate to win, yet failed to vote. They probably realized too late that they could have had a positive impact, not only by voting but also by encouraging others to vote.

Whoever you support in the SIU election, and however you stand on the proposed amendments, I urge you not to repeat their mistake of remaining silent. For the future of your union, cast your votes and encourage your fellow members to do the same.

Season's Greetings

For many, the holiday season is a reflective time. Looking back on the past year, I am especially grateful for the steady professionalism exhibited by SIU crews in our deep sea, Great Lakes and inland fleets. Your reliable work and your outstanding reputation helped pave the way for the union's continued advancement.

I also want to say a special thanks to the staff at the Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education. Between the openings of the new simulator building at Piney Point and the new safety school in Hawaii, plus the surge of training required for mariners in the initial crewing of U.S. Lines' cruise ship Patriot, they have had their hands full. And they've done a great job.

My thanks also goes to the staff of the Seafarers LOG. They are a dedicated group and they put out a good product, month after month.

Finally, I offer warm wishes to all Seafarers and their families for a safe, happy holiday season.

Law Intends Mariner Tax Relief

President Clinton early last month signed into law the bipartisan Transportation Worker Tax Fairness Act, a measure aimed at providing "equitable treatment with respect to state and local income taxes for certain individuals who perform duties on vessels."

The law took effect Nov. 9. It amends Chapter 111 of the United States Code, Title 46.

The legislation stipulates that pilots and other mariners "who perform regularly assigned duties while engaged as a master, officer or crewman on a vessel operating on the navigable waters of more than one State" shall be subject to state income tax only in his or her residential state.

In successfully requesting unanimous consent for the Senate version of the Transportation Worker Tax Fairness Act (S. 893), Senator John McCain (R-Ariz.) on Sept. 28 stated, "Under existing law, water transportation workers, including marine pilots, tow and tugboat workers and others who work aboard vessels are often subjected to filing and tax requirements by states other than their state of residence, leading to possible double taxation. I do not believe that double taxation is what Congress had intended for any transportation worker when it crafted the Interstate Commerce Act."

He pointed out that the Interstate Commerce Act exempts truck drivers, airline pilots and railroad employees from being taxed by state and local jurisdictions in which they don't reside.

Senator Slade Gorton (R-Wash.), who along with Senator Patty Murray (D-Wash.) introduced S. 893, stated that the legislation "will rectify this situation by extending the same tax treatment to personnel who work on the navigable waters of more than one state."

Rep. Brian Baird (D-Wash.) had introduced a companion bill in the House in March 1999.

SIU Pensioners to Get $500 Year-End Bonus

Eligible SIU pensioners will receive a year-end bonus check of $500 this month. The Seafarers Pension Plan Board of Trustees recently approved the payment after union representatives to the group recommended the bonus.

This bonus check will be sent to all SIU pensioners who currently receive monthly benefit checks for normal, early normal or disability pensions from the Seafarers Pension Plan.

The trustees also authorized the plan administrator to issue the January pension checks in December, as has been done for many years.

The board of trustees, composed of representatives from the SIU and its contracted companies, decided to issue the bonus after reviewing the plan's successful investment performance.

More information about the bonus or the pension plan in general may be obtained by contacting any union hall or by calling a plan representative at 1-800-CLAIMS4. Members and pensioners also may write to the plan at 5201 Auth Way, Camp Springs, MD 20746.

Please be advised that SIU headquarters and all SIU hiring halls will be closed Monday, Jan. 1 for the observance of New Year's Day and Monday, January 15 for the observance of Martin Luther King Jr. Day (unless an emergency arises). Normal business hours will resume the following workday.

Solidarity With OPEIU

Seafarers rallied Oct. 15 in Garden City, N.Y. with striking members of the Office and Professional Employees International Union (OPEIU) Local 153 who are employed at Adelphi University. The OPEIU members' job action began in mid-September. The key issues included health care premiums, wages and pension benefits. Single-Occupancy Rooms Planned for Paul Hall Center

Other Improvements Okayed for School

As vocational schooling becomes increasingly vital for Seafarers, the Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education continues improving its curriculums and its facilities.

The latest major announcement from the Piney Point, Md. school came last month during SIU membership meetings throughout the country. Namely, the Paul Hall Center is adding approximately 100 single-occupancy dormitory rooms for upgraders. Meanwhile, approximately half of the school's existing 250 hotel rooms will be renovated.

The 100 or so new rooms will be located in the former trainee administration building—scheduled for a complete refurbishment—behind the Paul Hall Library and Maritime Museum. An additional floor likely will be added to the two-story structure.

New furniture also is being ordered for approximately half the rooms in the hotel, while new roofs are being installed on nearly every structure throughout the 65-acre campus. Work already has begun on the latter project, expected to last about eight months.

The estimated completion date for the new rooms and renovated hotel rooms is not yet known. Nevertheless, Seafarers at SIU halls around the nation look forward to the upgrade.

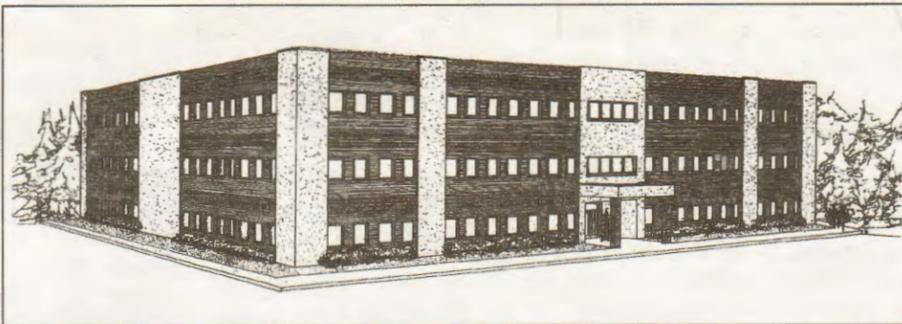

"It'll be a phenomenal improvement," said QMED Tyler Harden in Mobile, Ala. "What it's going to do is cut down on distractions, especially for concentration on your studies. It'll probably also allow members to get better sleep, because of different (individual) schedules for classes.

"It makes you feel like the officials are looking out for our best interests," he added.

In New Orleans, Recertified Steward Ernie Hoitt said, "I think it'll improve people's studies. One person to a room, I think it'll work out fine."

"It's an excellent decision," stated Electrician Randy Clark in Houston. "It will increase guys' ability to study and increase privacy. It's a great move."

In Baltimore, AB John Salarda cited

The above illustration is an artist's rendition of the refurbished building at the Paul Hall Center which will contain nearly 100 single-occupancy rooms.

the potentially more conducive atmosphere for studies as a key benefit to the single-student rooms.

Oiler Stephanie Brown in Jacksonville, Fla. said another plus may be "lifestyle considerations—something as simple as, one person may smoke, while [a roommate] may not."

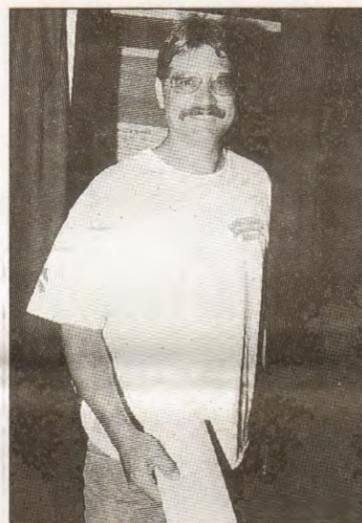

The changes were announced following October meetings of the Trustees of all of the Seafarers Plans.

"We have need for single-occupancy rooms, so this will be a big step forward," said Don Nolan, vice president of the Paul Hall Center. "It'll take a lot of work, but it will all be worth it."

Other notable additions to the center during the past 18 months have included the openings of the new simulator building and the Joseph Sacco Fire Fighting and Safety School. Also during that time, the school has added several U.S. Coast Guard-approved, STCW-related courses and secured opportunities for students to earn college credits by successfully completing certain vocational training classes.

Voting began last month and will continue through Dec. 30 in the election of officers of the SIU's Atlantic, Gulf, Lakes and Inland Waters District.

Balloting is taking place at 21 SIU halls throughout the country. Full-book SIU members in good standing are eligible to vote in the election, which will determine union officers for the 2001-2004 term. The ballot also includes five proposed constitutional amendments.

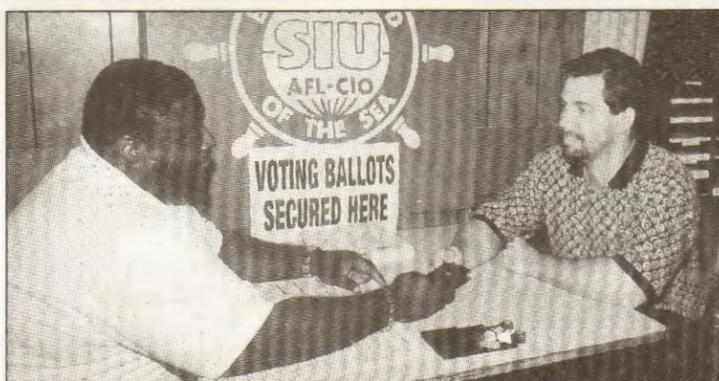

Seafarers may obtain their ballot from 9 a.m. until noon, Mondays through Saturdays, except legal holidays, until Dec. 30.

Listed on the ballot are the names of candidates seeking the posts of president, executive vice president, secretary-treasurer, six vice presidents, six assistant vice presidents, two headquarters representatives and 10 port agents (for a total of 27 positions). It also includes the five proposed constitutional amendments.

At the union halls, a member in good standing (upon presenting his or her book) is given a ballot and two envelopes. After his or her selection is marked, the ballot is folded and placed inside an envelope marked "ballot." That envelope then is sealed inside a postage-paid envelope bearing the mailing address of the bank depository where ballots are kept until submitted to the union tallying committee.

That rank-and-file tallying committee, consisting of two members from each of the union's constitutional ports, will be elected in December. They will convene in early January and will tabulate and announce the election results.

Union Families Mobilize, Vote In Record Numbers

Nation Elects Pro-Maritime Congress

Union households played a pivotal role on Election Day, accounting for the winning margins in several key elections and ballot initiatives, according to the AFL-CIO.

The national federation of trade unions (to which the SIU is affiliated) also reported that union members and their families composed a record high 26 percent of voters Nov. 7.

Meanwhile, a solid nucleus of pro-maritime legislators won their respective elections in the House and Senate, said SIU Legislative Affairs Director Terry Turner.

"It's very gratifying that so many people were re-elected who believe in a strong U.S.-flag fleet," Turner stated. "At the same time, there are some new faces in both houses of Congress, and the SIU will work hard to familiarize those legislators with the vital role of the U.S. Merchant Marine."

The presidential election remained unsettled as this issue of the Seafarers LOG went to press. Prior to Nov. 7, Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush each issued a statement expressing support for the U.S.-flag fleet and American mariners.

AFL-CIO President John Sweeney noted that union voters helped defeat two "paycheck deception" ballot initiatives that attacked the voice of working families in Oregon. They also were instrumental in turning back voucher initiatives in California and Michigan.

"What is striking about all the exit polls is how much a majority of Americans agree with a working families agenda," Sweeney said. "Working families want Social Security protected and Medicare strengthened, not turned over to HMOs. They want prescription drug benefits for seniors, as well as investments in education, health care and infrastructure."

According to a post-election survey reported by the federation, union members identified as their most important voting issues (in order) Social Security; economy and jobs; health care including prescription medications; and education.

As in previous elections, corporations substantially outspent unions—by 15-to-1—during this voting cycle. That is up from 11-to-1 in the prior two elections.

During mid-November party meetings, House Speaker Dennis Hastert (R-Ill.), Majority Leader Dick Armey (R-Texas) and Majority Whip Tom DeLay (R-Texas) were reappointed to their respective positions for the new Congress, as were House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.) and Minority Whip David Bonior (D-Mich.). Senate leadership positions were expected to be filled early this month.

New Name, Improved Benefit Affirmed by Seafarers Health Plan

The Seafarers Welfare Plan Board of Trustees last month announced an increase in the sickness and accident benefit, plus a new name for the Plan itself.

Beginning Jan. 1, 2001, the sickness and accident benefit will be $25 per day. That amount represents an increase of more than 212 percent.

Additionally—largely due to member feedback indicating occasional misunderstandings with some health care providers—the Plan's new name is the Seafarers Health and Benefits Plan. The periodic confusion apparently stemmed from some providers mistaking the term "welfare" to mean public assistance, rather than wellbeing.

At the November membership meeting in Piney Point, Md., Seafarers Plans Administrator Lou

Delma noted, "Although this change has been approved, both names (Seafarers Welfare Plan and Seafarers Health and Benefits Plan) will be in use for a while, as it will take some time to change all of the Plan documents and to notify the required government agencies."

As reported in the November issue of the Seafarers LOG, the Plan also recently announced a major expansion of its annual scholarship program for SIU members and their dependents. The improved program annually will include three scholarships for SIU members and five for spouses and dependent children of Seafarers. Altogether, the scholarships' value totals $132,000.

For more details on the scholarship program, see page 21.

MSC Christens USNS Impeccable

Seafarers Will Crew New Surveillance Ship

The U.S. Military Sealift Command (MSC) last month ceremonially launched its newest ocean surveillance vessel, the SIU crewed USNS Impeccable. The ship is the only one in its class.

SIU members will fill all unlicensed positions aboard the new vessel when it enters the fleet, although that date has not yet been announced.

Copies of the new five-year contract covering the Impeccable and 13 other SIU crewed T-AGOS and SWATH ships were mailed to the vessels in October. As previously reported, Seafarers enthusiastically have reacted to the agreement, which includes substantial wage and benefit increases.

For instance, with the new contract, the bosuns, stewards and QMEDs—based on working seven days a week and working three hours of overtime per day—each would earn $6,622.75 per month. The contract also increased the vacation benefit by five days and adds enrollment in the Seafarers

Money Purchase Pension Plan.

Also, the pact includes 3 percent wage increases each year, plus boosts the vacation benefit seven days (to a total of 14) by the third year.

Meanwhile, finishing touches are being applied to the Impeccable at Halter Marine Shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss. The Impeccable will join eight other ocean surveillance vessels that use a towed-array sensor system, called SURTASS, to support the Navy's antisubmarine warfare capability. It will gather ocean acoustical data for antisubmarine warfare and rapidly transmit the information to the Navy for prompt analysis.

The Impeccable is 281 feet long and can travel at a sustained speed of 12 knots. It is considerably larger and even faster than the 235-foot Victorious-class ships, which are capable of a sustained speed of 9.6 knots.

The USNS Impeccable is covered by a five-year contract.

The newest additions to Express Marine's fleet are the tug Express Explorer and the barge Domino Sugar, which operate between Baltimore and Brooklyn, N.Y.

Express Marine Launches New Tug & Barge

The SIU welcomed new jobs as Express Marine dedicated the new barge Domino Sugar along with its companion tug Express Explorer.

The tug and barge recently entered service, transporting cargo primarily between Baltimore and Brooklyn, N.Y.

Express Marine listed several notable aspects of the barge's design. For instance, it is coated with food-grade epoxy paint that meets FDA standards for contact with food-grade products.

Ten pumps are situated on the barge, each of which is rated at 400 GPM. They leave minimal residual product after unloading, while enabling a complete off-load 10.5 hours.

An air filtration system was added to the barge to filter replacement air going into the tanks as product is pumped off.

Additionally, the vessel is equipped with three on-deck tanks that will return residual cane syrup product from one port to another for further processing.

The barge was constructed by Halter Marine in Gulfport, Miss.

The Express Explorer is a twin engine tug with 3600 horsepower of towing capacity. Its bow fits into the notch at the stern of the barge.

The tug utilizes a crew of six and features an upper wheelhouse that is 48 feet above the water level, providing optimum visibility.

Seafarer Young Survives Singapore Airlines Disaster

Seafarer Warren Lee Young dozed in his seat aboard Singapore Airlines flight SQ006, settling in for an anticipated long flight from Taiwan's Chiang Kai-shek International Airport to Los Angeles.

Moments later, he struggled to escape the fiery remains of the ill-fated jet, which mistakenly had traveled down a closed runway. The Boeing 747-400, moving at greater than 150 mph, struck a concrete barrier on the runway and then caromed through a construction site. Eighty-one of the 179 people aboard were killed as the plane erupted into flames and broke apart.

Young, a medical department representative (MDR) with the SIU, survived, suffering burns on both arms. He returned to the U.S. one week after the Oct. 31 disaster and, as of late November, continued receiving daily treatments for his injuries.

The crash made headlines worldwide.

"I've had all kinds of emotions about it, a little bit of everything," Young, 44, said in a Nov. 15 interview with the Seafarers LOG. "At first, I had some trouble sleeping."

The anxious moments continued when he returned to the airport a week later for what proved to be a routine flight home. "But my sisters and brother-in-law came over (to Taipei), along with a nurse from the U.S., and they flew back with me. I was a little nervous about flying at first, but their being there made it a little easier."

'The Plane Started Shaking'

Young joined the SIU in July 1999 in Norfolk, Va., after spending 11 years in the U.S. Navy. He most recently had sailed aboard the SIU-contracted surveillance ship USNS Bruce Heezen and then briefly went aboard the USNS Bowditch before planning to return home.

Having flown overseas and back several times, he wasn't worried as he settled into seat 53K—a window seat near the right wing on flight SQ006.

"I heard a little pop. I thought we had a blowout," he recalled.

AP Photos/Wally Santana

Aviation inspectors view the sheared fuselage of Singapore Airlines jetliner flight SQ006 as it sits on the runway of the international airport in Taipei, Taiwan. The accident killed 81 people.

"Then the plane started shaking, jolted two or three times. I saw fire on the right wing, then everything started falling apart."

"The next thing I knew, fire was shooting in my window," he continued. "I shielded my face and tried to get down as low as I could. I released the seat belt, then it seemed like I fell up (toward the top of the plane). I must have lost consciousness, because by the time I got up, I could only see three other people. The plane had broken apart and the exit was just ahead of me. That's where I must have slid."

As he and other passengers left the wreckage, they took cover in a large drainage ditch.

"There must have been 40 or 50 people in there," said Young. "We got in there in case the plane exploded. We stayed there a couple of minutes and then heard an explosion."

Despite his injuries—second- and third-degree burns on his right arm, first- and second-degree burns on his left—Young assisted other passengers out of the ditch. Vans transported them to the terminal; from there, ambulances took them to a hospital.

Confined in a foreign facility, Young said he initially didn't realize the large scope of media coverage the crash received, though he was interviewed by CBS Radio and by television personality Bryant Gumbel.

"I think I missed out on most of it, and then when I got back, the elections had taken over," he said.

Though he lives in Norfolk, Young is staying with family in Texas. He is taking hydrotherapy and likely will not need skin grafts to repair the damage. However, Young said he anticipates undergoing physical therapy for his right hand and arm.

According to news reports, the pilot of flight SQ006 (who survived the crash) is being blamed for the wreck.

Young said it could have been worse.

"It just so happened that part of the plane broke (away) from where the fuel was," he explained. "The open part of the plane was facing away from the fire. The right wing was what hit the (construction) equipment, apparently. That's how I got burned."

"I wasn't going to sit in my seat very long," he concluded. "I just wanted to get out of my seat and see if I was still going to be on fire."

Merchant Marine Included In World War II Memorial

Service anthems and "Taps" are played at the Nov. 11 event.

Hart Praises 'Sometimes Overlooked' Service

The U.S. Merchant Marine's vital contribution to the Allied victory in World War II will be honored as part of a new memorial being built in Washington, D.C.

President Clinton led a groundbreaking ceremony on Veterans Day for the World War II memorial. James Dooley, who sailed in the U.S. Merchant Marine during the war, also participated, along with other veterans.

In an account of the ceremony, the U.S. Maritime Administration (MarAd) noted, "The World War II Memorial will be the first national memorial dedicated to all who served in the armed forces and Merchant Marine of the United States during World War II and acknowledging the commitment and achievement of the entire nation. All military veterans of the war, the citizens on the home front, the nation at large, and the high moral purpose and idealism that motivated the nation's call to arms will be honored."

The ceremony concluded with a medley of service anthems, MarAd reported. The first, announced as the song of the Merchant Marine, "Heave Ho! My Lads, Heave Ho!" was sung by Erin Gant, a graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

Another U.S. Merchant Marine veteran attending the ceremony reported that military veterans, at least one with tears in his eyes, approached him to thank him and the merchant marine for its wartime service, according to MarAd.

In his Veterans Day statement, Maritime Administrator Clyde Hart (who recently returned to that post after a temporary assignment elsewhere) stated, "Each year, the nation pauses on November 11 to give thanks to and for all who have served in our armed forces in times of peril. Sometimes overlooked are America's Merchant Mariners who have risked all to support and sustain our servicemen and women.

"During World War II, nearly 6,000 merchant seaman and officers lost their lives in the struggle for freedom. In 1945, General Dwight D. Eisenhower said the members of the merchant marine, 'by their devotion to duty in the face of enemy action, as well as the natural dangers of the sea, have brought us the tools to finish the job. Their contribution to final victory will be long remembered.'

"On Veterans Day 2000, ground will be broken on the National Mall in Washington, D.C., for the National World War II memorial. It is appropriate and gratifying that the memorial will be dedicated to all who served in the armed forces and the Merchant Marine of the United States during World War II.

"From the birth of the Nation through the epic battles of the 20th Century, our merchant mariners have served whenever and wherever needed, including in Korea, Vietnam and the Persian Gulf. Today we should remember those in the merchant marine who served our nation so gallantly in the past, and we salute those who are prepared to answer the next call, whenever it comes.

"With the groundbreaking ceremony on the National Mall, we will especially hold in our hearts those who risked and sacrificed so much serving in the merchant marine during World War II."

Representing the U.S. Merchant Marine during the ceremony is James Dooley.

Notice to WWII Mariners

The BBC has commissioned what it describes as a "landmark series" on the Battle of the Atlantic. It will consist of three 50-minute programs.

As part of its research, the BBC is trying to contact (among others): survivors of the sinking of the Rueben James; those who served on Liberty ships; survivors from the tankers Gulfamerica, Atlas or Byron Benson; and "anyone who has a tale to tell relating to the Battle of the Atlantic."

Qualified individuals may contact Dominic Sutherland at the BBC via mail (BBC, Room 5433, White City, 201 Wood Lane, London W12 7TS, United Kingdom), telephone (+44 (0)208 752-6532), fax (+44 (0)208 752-6336) or email (dominic.sutherland@bbc.co.uk).

Lakes Seafarers, Gordon Crew Honored For Dramatic Rescues

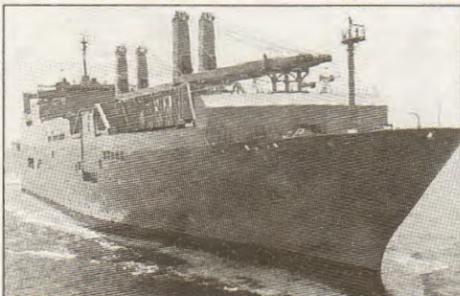

AB John Vegh (left) and Deckhand Michael Cushman were recently honored for their rescue of a dockworker in Michigan in January 1999.

Seafarers from the USNS Gordon and Cement Transit Company were among the honorees last month at the 31st annual Admiral of the Ocean Seas (AOTOS) awards ceremony, conducted in New York City.

The Gordon crew received a mariner's plaque for its March 1999 rescue of two people in the Persian Gulf from a sinking fishing boat. Rear Admiral Gordon S. Holder, commander of the U.S. Military Sealift Command, described the rescue as "a perfect example of seamanship in the finest tradition."

AB John Vegh and Deckhand Michael Cushman were honored for their roles in a January 2000 pier-side rescue of a dockworker who had fallen through ice between a tug and barge in Ferrysburg, Mich. Vegh sustained a separated shoulder during the nighttime episode.

The primary awards went to David J. Tolan, chairman of the Carriers Container Council and the United States Maritime Alliance Ltd; and to M. Brian Maher, chairman and CEO of Maher Terminals, Inc. The awards are sponsored by the United Seamen's Service.

An award also went to Seafarers from the USNS Gordon, who plucked two people from a sinking fishing boat in the Persian Gulf.

The Honored Seafarer Awards earned by SIU members "recognize the heroism American seafarers who have risked their lives to save others and the outstanding seamanship of officers and crews of vessels participating in rescue operations," noted the sponsor.

Labor Applauds OSHA's New Ergonomic Standard

Worker Safety Rule May Prevent Millions of Injuries

Calling it "the most important worker safety action developed" in the 30-year history of the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration, AFL-CIO President John Sweeney said the agency's newly issued ergonomic standard will spare millions of workers from repetitive stress injuries.

OSHA issued the new rule Nov. 13. It takes effect Jan. 16, 2001, with varying start-up dates for specific provisions.

While applauding the measure, the national federation of trade unions (to which the SIU is affiliated) cautioned in a statement that "the battle over the ergonomic standard is not over, as business groups and their allies in Congress are expected to continue their efforts to kill the worker safety rules. Opponents of the new safety standard are expected to continue their fight to include a ban in the still-pending fiscal year 2001 appropriations legislation that funds OSHA which would prevent the agency from spending any money on implementing the standard. They also may take their fight to the courts."

As stated by OSHA in its issuance of the rule, "The purpose of this standard is to reduce the number and severity of musculoskeletal disorders caused by exposure to risk factors in the workplace. This standard does not address injuries caused by slips, trips, falls, vehicle accidents, or similar accidents."

OSHA estimates that some 1.8 million workers a year report such work-related musculoskeletal disorders as carpal tunnel syndrome, tendinitis and back injuries—and more than 600,000 of those workers are forced to take time off from work to recover. The safety agency predicts that the new standard will prevent 4.6 million such injuries in the first 10 years.

"Workers in poultry plants, meat packing and auto assembly, along with computer operators, nurses' aides, cashiers and others in high-risk jobs, will finally have much-needed protection," Sweeney said.

"Since the passage of OSHA in 1970, the job fatality rate has been cut by 75 percent—saving more than 220,000 lives," said AFL-CIO Safety and Health Director Peg Seminario. "Job injury rates have been lowered by 39 percent. This new standard will also help make jobs safer and lower injury rates even more."

Business groups have argued that no scientific evidence backs up the need for the new ergonomic standard, despite years of research and studies to the contrary, including reports from the National Academy of Sciences, National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health and the dozens of hearings with hundreds of witnesses that OSHA conducted around the country this year.

For now, the new rule does not apply to the maritime, construction, railroad or agricultural industries. The agency noted, "OSHA recognizes that [musculoskeletal] problems are also serious in the construction, maritime, agricultural and railroad industries. However, the OSHA Act authorizes OSHA to set appropriate rulemaking priorities and to use a phased approach to rulemaking. A primary basis for the Agency's decision to limit the scope of this rulemaking to general industry is that most of the evidence and data relating to ergonomic interventions addresses general industry. Since general industry accounts for more than 90 percent of the musculoskeletal disorders reported each year, OSHA is promulgating a standard that addresses general industry first. This approach ensures that the greatest number of MSD hazards will be eliminated or controlled while OSHA determines appropriate regulatory approaches for the construction, agriculture and maritime industries."

Notice to Employees Covered by Union Agreements Regulated Under the National Labor Relations Act

The Seafarers International Union, AGLIWD assists employees by representing them in all aspects of their employment and work aboard vessels which sail deep sea, on the Great Lakes and inland waters throughout the country. For the most part, the union spends a majority of its financial resources on collective bargaining activities and employee representation services. In addition to these expenditures, the union also spends resources on a variety of other efforts such as organizing, publications, political activities, international affairs and community services. All of these services advance the interests of the union and its membership.

This annual notice is required by law and is sent to advise employees represented by the Seafarers International Union, AGLIWD about their rights and obligations concerning payment of union dues. This notice contains information which will allow you to understand the advantages and benefits of being a union member in good standing. It also will provide you with detailed information as to how to become an agency fee payor. An agency fee payor is an employee who is not a member of the union but who meets his or her financial obligation by making agency fee payments. With this information, you will be able to make an informed decision about your status with the Seafarers International Union, AGLIWD.

1. Benefits of union membership — While non-members do receive material benefits from a union presence in their workplace, there are significant benefits to retaining full membership in the union. Among the many benefits and opportunities available to a member of the Seafarers International Union, AGLIWD is the right to attend union meetings, the right to vote for candidates for union office and the right to run for union office. Members also have the right to participate in the development of contract proposals and participate in contract ratification and strike votes. Members also may play a role in the development and formulation of union policies.

2. Cost of union membership — In addition to working dues, to belong to the union as a full book member the cost is $300.00 (three hundred dollars) per year or $75.00 (seventy-five dollars) per quarter. Working dues amount to 5 percent of the gross amount an employee receives for vacation benefits and are paid when the member files a vacation application.

3. Agency fee payors — Employees who choose not to become union members may become agency fee payors. As a condition of employment, in states which permit such arrangements, individuals are obligated to make payments to the union in the form of an agency fee. The fee these employees pay is to support the core representational services that the union provides. These services are those related to the collective bargaining process, contract administration and grievance adjustments. Examples of these activities include but are not limited to, the negotiation of collective bargaining agreements, the enforcement and administration of collective bargaining agreements and meetings with employers and employees. Union services also include representation of employees during disciplinary meetings, grievance and arbitration proceedings, National Labor Relations Board hearings and court litigation.

Employees who pay agency fees are not required to pay for expenses not germane to the collective bargaining process. Examples of these expenses would be expenses required as a result of community service, legislative activities and political affairs.

4. Amount of agency fee — As noted above, dues objectors may pay a fee which represents the costs of expenses related to those supporting costs germane to the collective bargaining process. After review of all expenses during the 1999 calendar year, the fee cost associated with this representation amounts to 65.33 percent of the dues amount. This means that the agency fee based upon the dues would be $195.99 (one hundred ninety-five dollars and ninety-nine cents) for the applicable year. An appropriate reduction also will be calculated for working dues.

This amount applies to the 2001 calendar year. This means that any individual who wishes to elect to pay agency fees and submits a letter between December 1, 2000 and November 30, 2001 will have this calculation applied to their 2001 dues payments which may still be owed to the union. As noted below, however, to continue to receive the agency fee reduction effective January 2002, your objection must be received by December 1, 2001.

A report which delineates chargeable and non-chargeable expenses is available to you free of charge. You may receive a copy of this report by writing to: Secretary-Treasurer, Seafarers International Union, AGLIWD, 5201 Auth Way, Camp Springs, Maryland 20746. This report is based upon an audited financial report of the union's expenses during 1999.

Please note that as the chargeable and non-chargeable expenses may change each year, the agency fee amount may also fluctuate each year. Individuals who are entitled to pay agency fees and wish to pay fees rather than dues, must elect this option each year by filing an objection in accordance with the procedure noted below.

5. Filing of objections — If you choose to object to paying dues, an objection must be filed annually. To receive the deduction beginning in January of each year, you must file by the beginning of December in the prior year. An employee may file an objection at any time during the year, however, the reduction will apply only prospectively and only until December 31 of that calendar year. Reductions in dues will not be applied retroactively. As noted above, each year the amount of the dues reduction may change based upon an auditor's report from a previous year.

The objection must be sent in writing to: Agency Fee Payor Objection Administration, Secretary-Treasurer's Office, Seafarers International Union, AGLIWD, 5201 Auth Way, Camp Springs, Maryland 20746.

6. Filing a challenge — Upon receiving the notice of calculation of the chargeable expenditures related to core representation activities, an objector shall have 45 days to submit a challenge with the Secretary-Treasurer's office if he or she believes that the calculation of chargeable activities is incorrect. Every person who wishes to object to the calculation of chargeable expenses has a legal right to file such an objection.

7. Appeal procedure — Upon receiving the challenge(s) at the end of the 45-day period, the union will consolidate all appeals and submit them to an independent arbitrator. The presentation to the arbitrator will be either in writing or at a hearing. The method of the arbitration will be determined by the arbitrator. If a hearing is held, any objector who does not wish to attend may submit his/her views in writing by the date of the hearing. If a hearing is not held, the arbitrator will set the dates by which all written submissions will be received.

The costs of the arbitration shall be borne by the union. Individuals submitting challenges will be responsible for all the costs associated with presenting their appeal. The union will have the burden of justifying its calculations.

The SIU works very hard to ensure that all of its members receive the best representation possible. On behalf of all the SIU officers and employees, I would like to thank you for your continuing support.

Sincerely,
David Heindel, Secretary-Treasurer

Recertified Bosuns Cite Positive Growth

Seafarers Ascend to Deck Department's Pinnacle

The SIU's newest recertified bosuns credited the union and the Paul Hall Center for substantial progress and also encouraged the school's unlicensed apprentices as they embark on their careers.

Offering their remarks during the November membership meeting in Piney Point, Md. were Recertified Bosuns Kendra Savage, Phillip Harmon, Michael Hill, Romeo Lugtu, Paul Lucky, Scott Heginbotham, Kyle Schultz, Thomas Driggers, Donald Rezendes, David Zurek, Richard Higgins and Thomas Temple.

The recertified dozen completed a four-week course considered the highest program of study available to deck department Seafarers. Combining practical and classroom instruction, they covered topics such as STCW requirements, wire splicing, navigation, damage control, forklift handling, Hagglund crane operations, fire fighting, first aid and CPR, anti-terrorism measures, computer skills, and many others.

They also met with representatives of the union's contracts department; medical, pension and vacation plans; communications staff; and from the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department.

Several of the graduates offered poignant accounts concerning their respective beginnings with the SIU and how the union helped them find direction in life. All 12 said the recertification course proved worthwhile.

"The class was beyond my expectations," stated Savage, who sails from the port of Houston. "It cleared up misinformation, and it was very informative."

Savage, who joined the SIU in 1988, cited as course highlights the review of STCW requirements and the Joseph Sacco Fire Fighting and Safety School.

"My experiences at Piney Point are always wonderful," said the four-time upgrader. "The classes are helpful, the instructors are great."

'It's Paying Off'

Harmon, who graduated from the trainee program in 1978 and who sails from the port of Norfolk, Va., recalled an era when shipping wasn't as rewarding as it is today.

"The '80s were pretty tough, and some of the decisions that were made, I didn't always agree or understand them. But it's paying off now," he said. "We have a lot of ships and a lot of jobs. We're ahead of the game."

Hill expressed similar sentiments. A 1991 graduate of the trainee program, he said, "The SIU leadership is taking us in the right direction."

Hill, who sails from the port of Tacoma, Wash., said that during the course he had many questions answered about union rules, shipping procedures and the plans. He also encouraged fellow Seafarers to upgrade.

"Upgrading is necessary for SIU members to make themselves better Seafarers," he noted. "It also makes my job as a bosun easier when the people who work for me have the proper training."

Lugtu credited the union with "changing my life. With the SIU, I'm secure in my job, I'm secure with the future of my family."

A Seafarer since 1983, Lugtu's home port is Wilmington, Calif. He is a frequent upgrader and he described the school's various curriculums as "opportunities to improve yourself." Additionally, he encouraged fellow Seafarers to contribute to the union's political activities fund.

Finally, in what has become an unofficial tradition for recertified bosuns and stewards alike, Lugtu (like each of his classmates) directed comments to the unlicensed apprentices at the meeting.

"Be proud of our union and help make it the best in the country," he urged. "When you're on a ship, listen to your superiors. Be serious about your work, set your goals and maintain a good attitude."

Right Track

Like Lugtu, Lucky said the SIU helped him find direction.

"Coming out of senior high, it was a dark road. I didn't know where to go," recalled the 18-year Seafarer and trainee graduate. "I heard about the SIU from a friend's dad who was in the union. It has made me mature a lot, and I can support my family. I thank the officials, staff and instructors for educating me."

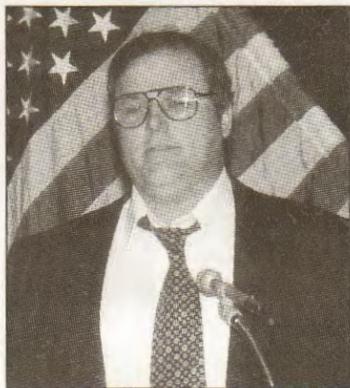

Lucky, who sails from Mobile, Ala., described the Paul Hall Center as "the best training school in the world. To fellow Seafarers, I'd say stop waiting for your time and go to Piney Point."

Heginbotham graduated from the entry program in 1991 and since then has upgraded three times.

"Upgrading is no longer optional. We must continue to hone our skills in order to maintain a competitive edge in this global marketplace," he noted.

Heginbotham, who sails from the port of Baltimore, also credited the union with "realizing fabulous growth with the (Mike) Sacco administration. How do we thank them? Be as professional as possible. Make them proud of us."

Savage Sets Precedent As 1st Female Graduate Of Bosun Recertification

Kendra Savage made union history Nov. 6, becoming the first female to graduate from the Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education's bosun recertification program.

The month-long class is considered the top curriculum available to deck-department Seafarers. The bosun recertification program has been offered at the school in Piney Point, Md. since 1973.

"It's an incredible honor," said Savage, who joined the SIU 12 years ago. "I would say to any other female Seafarers in the deck department, if you have enough courage to walk aboard ship, then you have enough courage to become a recertified bosun."

However, Savage added that she isn't sure how soon another female bosun may follow in her footsteps. She cannot recall sailing with another female member of the deck department (although they definitely exist).

However rare it may be to find ladies in the deck department on deep sea ships, Savage felt fairly comfortable from the moment she signed on with the SIU. She comes from a seafaring family—her brother Justin Savage is an SIU member, her brother John Savage is a port captain for G&H Towing who formerly sailed with the SIU, and her father sailed as an unlimited master.

"Everybody out there has to prove themselves, man or woman," Kendra Savage stated. "There were some difficult times, but it's a learning process and my shipmates taught me a lot. How you carry yourself is how you'll be treated."

Kendra Savage, the SIU's first female recertified bosun, says of sailing, "How you carry yourself is how you'll be treated."

She described her "proudest moment" as a time early in her career, when a seasoned bosun repeatedly refused to address her—apparently because he questioned her suitability. Instead, he channeled her assignments through other deck department members.

"Finally, one day he said to me, 'Girl, tie off those lines!' That was a great feeling."

MTD Maps Plan for Thwarting Runaway Flags

Report Urges Cooperative International Efforts Targeting FOCs

A detailed report by the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department (MTD) spells out the problems associated with runaway-flag shipping and lists potential remedies.

In a recent declaration to the International Commission on Shipping (ICOS), the MTD slammed runaway-flag shipping (also known as flag-of-convenience or FOC shipping), saying the scheme threatens the existence of traditional maritime registries.

Runaway-flag shipping is a scam in which the shipowner typically avoids its nation's labor, safety and tax laws—among others—by using another country's flag.

Given the importance of the maritime industry, the MTD report said, policymakers around the globe have a vested interest in ensuring that it remains sound. Unfortunately, the proliferation of FOC registries has created a crisis that is evidenced in many ways including: a future potential shortage of suitably skilled mariners; an aging world fleet; a long-term increase in the number of accidents and lives lost at sea; serious and chronic human rights abuses; and the inability or reluctance of some flag states to implement vitally important international standards.

The international maritime community must tackle this challenge head-on, stressed the report. Among other actions, the report suggests that the world's maritime population employ the following tactics:

- Recognize the important role that the industry plays in the world economy and establish and enact policies that ensure its continued viability and structural soundness.
- Confront the environmental, safety and humanitarian crisis at sea.

- Establish meaningful incentives and measures to modernize the international fleet while reducing maritime accidents and deaths.

- Recognize that maritime workers are important assets and take steps to improve their wages, working conditions, skills and training.

- Participate in international organizations such as the ILO and IMO and strengthen them by enhancing their oversight authority in the enforcement of existing and future rules and regulations and by helping ensure that they receive the proper resources to reach this objective.

Once the structural crisis has been addressed, the MTD report recommended specific measures that would help modernize the world fleet. Among them:

- Refuse to accept the culture of secrecy that surrounds the FOC system and take steps to make it more open and transparent.

- Require that a genuine link exist between shipowners and the nations under whose registries they document their vessels.

- Take appropriate steps to ensure that FOC and other substandard registries implement and adhere to international standards, regulations and norms.

- Acknowledge that conditions in the international maritime industry won't improve if owners are permitted to change registries at will.

- Restore accountability and establish effective sanctions to all facets of the FOC system, including registries, shipowners, classification societies, charterers, manning agencies, banks and insurance companies.

The MTD report lauded civilian mariners as important assets that should be treated with dignity and respect. Unfortunately, the testimony said, labor and civil rights abuses permeate today's FOC culture, and investment in seafarers training and development in many nations is virtually nonexistent. To alter this situation, the MTD urged the international community to:

- Pay attention to the human element in shipping. Chronic labor and human rights abuses that exist aboard substandard and FOC vessels should not be tolerated, the report said.

- Ratify and rigorously enforce ILO Convention 147, the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work (1998).

- Make maritime training and strict enforcement of the International Convention on Standards of Training, Certificate and Watchkeeping a priority.

While the international maritime community must undertake the lion's share of the actions to combat FOC shipping, the report also itemized vital functions that individual nations ought to embark on. Individual nations can play an important role in eradicating abuses aboard FOC vessels through both their flag state responsibilities and port state control activities, the report suggested. The MTD recommended that as flag states, individual nations should, among other actions:

- Provide agencies in charge of overseeing maritime safety, labor and governmental standards with the resources necessary to ensure that these standards are being met.

- Ratify, implement and enforce maritime treaties and obligations to which they are party.

- Support concerted actions by the B40 FSI Subcommittee to establish mandatory/binding international requirements for the quality of flag states and flag registries.

- Support actions by the FSI Subcommittee to establish a "white list" for nations that pass IMO scrutiny in the implementation and enforcement of their conventions.

Further, the MTD recommends that individual nations exercise appropriate and strict port state control measures in scrutinizing the movement of substandard and FOC vessels in their waters, including detention and denial of entry into waters ship flying the flag of a chronic offending nation.

Norwegian-Flag Tanker Charged in Polluting Bankruptcy Action May Foil Oil Spill Accountability

United States prosecutors may come up short in their quest to bring the owners, operators and officers of a foreign-flag tanker to justice for deliberately dumping hundreds of thousands of gallons of oily water and for lying to the U.S. Coast Guard, because the companies involved have filed for bankruptcy.

Published reports say a federal grand jury earlier this year indicted four people connected to the Norwegian-flagged Freja Jutlandic—the vessel's master, her chief engineer and two supervisors. The four allegedly tried to hide a hole in the hull of the 10,884-dwt vessel. In addition, a seven-count indictment was issued last month against the ship's operator, D/S Progress of Denmark, and her owner, K/S Transport. The companies faced criminal fines of $500,000 for each of the seven counts against them.

This is believed to be the first case in which a shoreside "designated person" under the International Safety and Management Code was criminally charged with directing vessel pollution, according to news reports.

The chances of holding any of those involved accountable, however, has sharply diminished. Not only have the charged individuals returned home to Europe on bail, but also the two Danish companies are moving into bankruptcy. Meanwhile, the Freja Jutlandic has been put up for auction, without attracting any interest.

The indictments stemmed from a routine inspection of the Freja Jutlandic in the port of Baltimore last March. According to federal prosecutors, one of the crew passed a handwritten note to U.S. Coast Guard personnel, alleging a hole in the vessel's hull. Court records indicate that inspectors found "a cascade of water" pouring into the ship through a hastily patched hole in its engine room. Failure to report a leak is a felony under U.S. law. In addition, the master and chief engineer allegedly were then ordered to dump 25,000 gallons of fuel mixed with water overboard en route to Mexico.

The indictment alleges that the master discharged more than 260,000 gallons of oily water between February and April. They also failed to report that the ship was pumping out between 100 and 500 gallons of oily water an hour for 10 days as a result of the leak, published sources say.

LOG Awarded 1st Prize In Labor Press Contest

A four-page center spread in the December 1999 Seafarers LOG earned a first-prize award last month from the International Labor Communications Association (ILCA).

The ILCA, an AFL-CIO organization which provides support to international, national, regional and local union publications and web sites, presented the prize for "Decade of Progress," a documentation of the major issues, actions and people that have affected Seafarers and the U.S. merchant fleet during the years 1990 through 1999.

The article included highlights from each of the 10 years as well as a reproduction of a front page from one of the monthly LOGs from that year.

Altogether, more than 1,500 entries from hundreds of publications vied for awards offered in 15 different categories. Publications competed with newspapers and journals of similar circulation and style.

The combined per-issue circulation of the ILCA's 900 member publications exceeds 28 million.

The LOG's award was in the field of labor history. The subcategory was "best story, profile or editorial using history to explain current events."

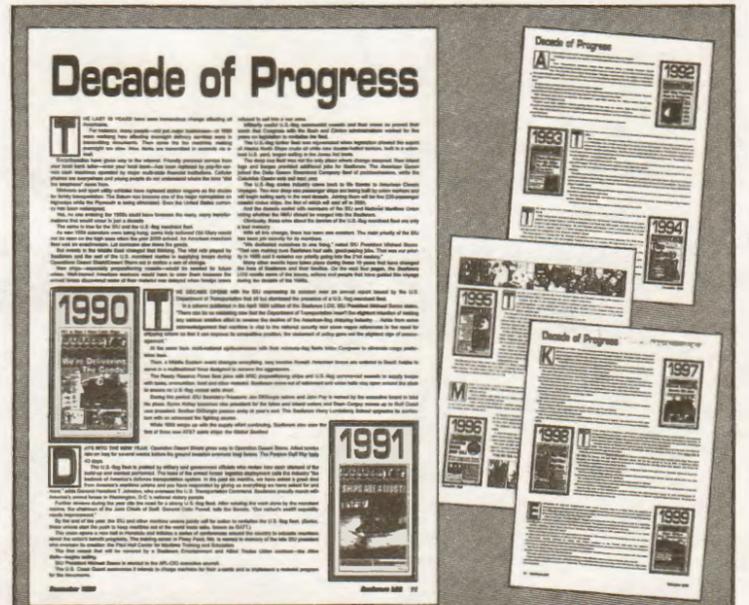

The "Decade of Progress" piece noted that the Persian Gulf War helped change the thinking of many who previously didn't see the need for a strong U.S.-flag fleet. The staff of the Seafarers LOG includes Jordan Biscardo, communications director; Deborah A. Hirtes, managing editor/production; Jim Guthrie, associate editor; Bill Brower, art; and Jeanne Textor, administrative support. Heading the department during the time covered by the contest period was Daniel W. Duncan, now serving as executive director of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department.

Schultz said his time in the SIU "has been a wild, fun, profitable 22 years. I truly have seen the world, I've made some good friends and I'm honored to have been chosen for this program. God bless the SIU!"

Likewise, Driggers mentioned his worldwide travels as a career highlight. "I've been to Europe, South America, all kinds of places. It's always been a good life for me."

Driggers joined the SIU in 1978 and sails from the port of Jacksonville, Fla. He advised the unlicensed apprentices, "Study hard, and remember there are no stupid questions except for the ones you don't ask. Hang out with the good people and avoid the troublemakers."

Seizing Opportunity

"This is it!" exclaimed an enthusiastic Rezendes, who sails from the port of Tacoma.

"I first came to this school in 1969 at 16 years old," he continued. "The SIU changed the direction I was heading and allowed me to live a life of integrity. I was enabled to get some education and set goals for myself that I probably never would have achieved otherwise."

Rezendes said the recertification class gave him "a much better understanding of [political action] and how our pension and medical benefits work. I look forward to getting back out there and squaring away some misinformation that's going on."

He added, "Our President Sacco and his staff have been right on the mark in their visions of the future of the SIU and the ever-changing role we have as U.S. merchant mariners."

Zurek said the school's newest training facilities—the simulator building and the fire fighting school—particularly caught his attention.

"I was very, very impressed," said the 22-year SIU member, who sails from the port of New York. "People have done a fine job here for us. Now I can go out to the membership and let them know what a good thing we have here."

Speaking to the apprentices, Zurek said, "You have an opportunity to make a good, honest living at this trade. It's done me and my family very well. Ask questions, do the best you can and be proud of the SIU."

Symbolic of a growing component of U.S. military veterans in the SIU, Higgins said he appreciated the chance to start a second career following 24 years in the U.S. Navy.

"I never thought I'd have another chance to work and advance," stated Higgins, who joined the union in 1990 in Norfolk, Va. "I'm very grateful to be here." Higgins emphasized the need for all Seafarers to upgrade. He also told the apprentices, "Realize the opportunity that lies out there for you. But you also have the responsibility of doing a good job."

The final speaker, Temple, has sailed inland and deep sea during his 24 years in the SIU.

"I learned a lot in this class and I thank the staff," said Temple, who sails from the port of Mobile, Ala. "To the unlicensed apprentices, the opportunity is there. Keep an open mind and a good attitude."

Many of the recertified bosuns said that the Paul Hall Center's new simulator building (left) and Joseph Sacco Fire Fighting and Safety School (right) greatly have enhanced the vocational education opportunities at the Piney Point, Md. campus.

East Meets West Aboard the Global Sentinel

The cable ship Global Sentinel spent 25 days in the port of Hitachi, Japan recently, loading 3,200 kilometers of fiber-optic cable for a project in South America. While in port, the crew took some time from its round-the-clock loading operation for an American-style barbecue.

More than 120 people took part in the cookout, including many of the Hitachi workers and their families. The steward department, under the direction of Recertified Chief Steward Kent Rosiek—and with the help of Chief Cook Charles Atkins and Cook/Bakers Shawn "Fuji" Fujiwara and Landa Bunch—spent the whole day preparing the food. Also helping out with setup and serving the guests were SAs Leroy Jenkins, Hamid Shahbain, Estive Soriano and Brenda Gray.

A few Hitachi employees brought some local fare, so everybody had an opportunity to sample both Eastern and Western food.

The Japanese were amazed at the sheer amount of food put out by the ship's crew for their tasting pleasure, noted Fujiwara (who sent the LOG the photos appearing on this page).

A few days after the barbecue, when the loading had been completed, the ship and its crew were given a Shinto blessing for a safe journey and safe project. The Global Sentinel then set sail for Valparaiso, Chile, with a stop in Hawaii for fuel and stores.

After the load of fiber-optic cable was completed, the Global Sentinel and its crew were given a Shinto blessing for a safe journey (left). The ship's captain, D.B. Neel (below) also took part in the Japanese ceremony.

Chief Cook Charles Atkins takes over the carving table, which included smoked Virginia ham and oven roasted sirloin of beef.

"What would an American barbecue be without burgers and hot dogs right off the grill?" asks Cook/Baker Shawn "Fuji" Fujiwara.

It took a 28-foot table to contain most of the food presented by the ship's steward department.

Left: Some of the workers from the cable factory man one of the grills, serving noodles and chicken yakitori sticks for all to sample.

The ship's gangway stands as a greeting to its Japanese guests.

Amancio Crespo, SIU safety director Caribbean region, begins another day at the office, ready to ship a crew member to a waiting vessel. Crespo also sent the LOG the photos appearing on this page.

During the October membership meeting at the union hall in San Juan, members share a moment of silence for departed SIU brothers and sisters.

Safety Director Amancio Crespo, right, talks to his hometown mayor, Luisito Melendez, during a campaign walk in the neighborhood, about the Seafarers in Puerto Rico and how the union is helping the island's economy.

'Safety First' on Columbia Queen

Shipboard Training Enhances Secure Operation

As one might imagine, there are seemingly endless details involved in launching a new passenger vessel.

But, for the inaugural group of Seafarers who earlier this year signed on aboard the 218-foot Columbia Queen, one element particularly stood out: safety.

With that in mind, SIU crew members completed on-site safety training aboard the Columbia Queen prior to the first voyage May 26. Instructors from the Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education conducted the shipboard classes, which included fire fighting, first aid and CPR, sanitation and more.

The early May training sessions took place in Natchez, Miss. Subsequently, the Columbia Queen sailed for the Pacific Northwest, where it offers seven- and eight-night vacations.

The riverboat—which can carry 161 passengers—is owned by SIU-contracted Delta Queen Steamboat Co. Delta Queen also operates the passenger boats American Queen, Delta Queen and Mississippi Queen, which cruise throughout the nation's heartland and the Old South.

Additionally, the company is building coastal cruise vessels scheduled to begin service next year.

Delivering in Va.'s 1st District

Retired Seafarer Max Simerly provides copies of the Seafarers LOG to Jo Ann Davis earlier this year at her campaign kickoff in Hampton, Va. Davis last month became the first Republican congresswoman from Virginia by defeating three other candidates in the 1st District. Simerly, known for many years throughout his region for his tireless work in voter registration drives, is an officer in the Hampton Roads Chapter of the American Merchant Marine Veterans.

Allegiance Crew Brushes Up On Union Election Procedures

During a payoff in San Pedro, Calif. in early October—weeks before the SIU elections—Seafarers aboard the M/V Allegiance met with SIU Wilmington, Calif. Port Agent John Cox and SIU Jacksonville, Fla. Patrolman Bryan Powell.

The officials and crew reviewed in detail the balloting procedures for the SIU elections, including the absentee ballot system. They examined the proposed constitutional amendments printed on one side of the ballot.

Additionally, among other topics, they discussed recent contractual gains secured by the union as well as overall positive trends in maritime, including the revitalization of the U.S.-flag cruise ship industry.

Hands-On Training Is Vital Component Of Apprentice Class

Program Offers Maritime Careers

Many of the new and evolving regulations impacting merchant mariners place unprecedented emphasis on the practical demonstration of job skills. Efficiently documenting such performances of shipboard tasks is a big reason why the Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education in 1997 published a U.S. Coast Guard-accepted training record book (TRB).

That same year, the school—located in Piney Point, Md.—restructured its entry-ratings program, placing greater emphasis on hands-on training. The revamped curriculum comprises three segments: an initial 12 weeks at the school, featuring a blend of classroom and practical instruction; a 90-day shipboard assignment on an SIU-contracted vessel, designed to help students decide which department they prefer (deck, engine or steward); and department-specific training back in Piney Point.

Shipboard learning isn't limited to that second segment, as students utilize various training vessels at the Paul Hall Center. Apprentices also use the world-class Joseph Sacco Fire Fighting Safety School (part of the Paul Hall Center), which offers practical training in fire fighting, water survival, confined-space safety and more. And soon, they will train in the school's new simulator building, which houses cutting-edge simulators for navigational, engine, crane and liquid-cargo operations.

For more information about the apprentice program (and other aspects of the school), please call the Paul Hall Center toll-free at 1-877-235-3275, or visit the internet site <http://www.seafarers.org>.

Aboard the training vessel Osprey, unlicensed apprentices at the Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education begin learning their craft.

Attend Monthly Membership Meetings

Keeping abreast of news from within the SIU and the maritime industry is the most important reason for attending the monthly membership meetings held on specified dates in each SIU hall around the country.

In addition to informing Seafarers about contract talks, maritime legislation and national policies, the meetings provide a forum in which to discuss issues of importance to the rank-and-file members and to the union's officials.

Seafarers may refer to the schedule below as well as each issue of the Seafarers LOG, which lists the dates of the next two meetings scheduled for each port.

Continuing Education

The Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education primarily focuses on vocational studies, but additionally offers academic curriculums—all aimed at developing well-trained, efficient mariners. Two students in the Piney Point, Md. facility's unlicensed apprentice class 602 recently took advantage of the supplementary courses by earning their GEDs. Receiving the certificates during the November membership meeting in Piney Point are (from left) UAs Charles Fitzpatrick and Michael Harvey, congratulated by SIU Headquarters Representative Carl Peth.

Using Different Skills on the Sumner

Above, AB Dexton West operates an oceanographic winch aboard the USNS Sumner in the Sea of Japan. The exercise involves lowering an oceanographic package to the bottom of the sea and then recovering it in 2,000 meters of water. In the photo below, QMED Troy Banks controls the winch from the vessel's deck, monitoring operating parameters and ensuring that wire is properly replaced on the drum. Banks built and installed a special device to wash salt from the wire as it returns aboard ship.

PIC-FROM-THE-PAST

This photograph, sent to the LOG by Alfred Porcari of Howard Beach, N.Y., was taken at sea in December 1956 on the Waterman Steamship Corp. vessel SS Yaka, a C-2 cargo ship.

Porcari notes that "everyone slept back aft below, right over the rudder. When the ship was light and that rudder came out of the water, it just about bounced you out of your bunk. The steward department slept midships. There were three oilers all on different watches in the same room. Same for the three firemen—and they all got along. The ship also carried three wipers and after supper, everyone sat on the #5 hatch shooting the bull (in photo at right). These were the days before VCRs and private rooms."

In those days, Porcari adds, Waterman had at least 25 SIU-crewed ships. This particular one was from New York to the Far East and back—about a 95-day trip.

Porcari joined the SIU in the port of New York in 1947 and retired in 1991.

Welcome Ashore

Each month, the Seafarers LOG pays tribute to the SIU members who have devoted their working lives to sailing aboard U.S.-flag vessels on the deep seas, inland waterways or Great Lakes. Listed below are brief biographical sketches of those members who recently retired from the union. The brothers and sisters of the SIU thank those members for a job well done and wish them happiness and good health in the days ahead.

An Inland captain and a recertified steward are among the 18 Seafarers announcing their retirements this month. Weldon Potts navigated the inland waterways as a captain for nearly 25 years while Recertified Steward Henry Jones Jr. graduated from the highest level of training available to members of the steward department at the SIU's training school in Piney Point, Md.

Six of the retirees worked in the deck department, seven shipped in the engine department and four sailed in the steward department.

In December, the number of babies born under the Seafarers maternity benefit program rose to 1,000. The Welfare Plan provides a $200 maternity benefit for eligible seamen with a $25 bond being given to the baby. The benefits, first established in April 1952, have been an important aid to Seafarers in meeting the high costs of maternity care. The maternity plan is funded by the SIU Welfare Plan.

The Seafarers International Union and other member unions of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department are giving full support to a strike by members of the International Longshoremen's Association in ports from Maine to Texas. The walkout followed the shippers' rejection of an ILA offer of a two-year contract during which the key issue of manpower would be studied by a panel, with recommendations to be made at the conclusion of the agreement. The ILA has accused the shippers of not bargaining in good faith.

Know Your Rights

FINANCIAL REPORTS. The Constitution of the SIU Atlantic, Gulf, Lakes and Inland Waters District makes specific provision for safeguarding the membership's money and union finances. The constitution requires a detailed audit by certified public accountants every year, which is to be submitted to the membership by the secretary-treasurer. A yearly finance committee of rank-and-file members, elected by the membership, each year examines the finances of the union and reports fully their findings and recommendations. Members of this committee may make dissenting reports, specific recommendations and separate findings.

TRUST FUNDS. All trust funds of the SIU Atlantic, Gulf, Lakes and Inland Waters District are administered in accordance with the provisions of various trust fund agreements. All these agreements specify that the trustees in charge of these funds shall equally consist of union and management representatives and their alternates. All expenditures and disbursements of trust funds are made only upon approval by a majority of the trustees. All trust fund financial records are available at the headquarters of the various trust funds.

SHIPPING RIGHTS. A member's shipping rights and seniority are protected exclusively by contracts between the union and the employers. Members should get to know their shipping rights. Copies of these contracts are posted and available in all union halls. If members believe there have been violations of their shipping or seniority rights as contained in the contracts between the union and the employers, they should notify the Seafarers Appeals Board by certified mail, return receipt requested. The proper address for this is:

Augustin Tellez, Chairman
Seafarers Appeals Board
5201 Auth Way
Camp Springs, MD 20746

Full copies of contracts as referred to are available to members at all times, either by writing directly to the union or to the Seafarers Appeals Board.

CONTRACTS. Copies of all SIU contracts are available in all SIU halls. These contracts specify the wages and conditions under which an SIU member works and lives aboard a ship or boat. Members should know their contract rights, as well as their obligations, such as filing for overtime (OT) on the proper sheets and in the proper manner. If, at any time, a member believes that an SIU patrolman or other union official fails to protect their contractual rights properly, he or she should contact the nearest SIU port agent.

EDITORIAL POLICY — THE SEAFARERS LOG. The Seafarers LOG traditionally has refrained from publishing any article serving the political purposes of any individual in the union, officer or member. It also has refrained from publishing articles deemed harmful to the union or its collective membership. This established policy has been reaffirmed by membership action at the September 1960 meetings in all constitutional ports. The responsibility for Seafarers LOG policy is vested in an editorial board which consists of the executive board of the union. The executive board may delegate, from among its ranks, one individual to carry out this responsibility.

PAYMENT OF MONIES. No monies are to be paid to anyone in any official capacity in the SIU unless an official union receipt is given for same. Under no circumstances should any member pay any money for any reason unless he is given such receipt. In the event anyone attempts to require any such payment be made without supplying a receipt, or if a member is required to make a payment and is given an official receipt, but feels that he or she should not have been required to make such payment, this should immediately be reported to union headquarters.

CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS. Copies of the SIU Constitution are available in all union halls. All members should obtain copies of this constitution so as to familiarize themselves with its contents. Any time a member feels any other member or officer is attempting to deprive him or her of any constitutional right or obligation by any methods, such as dealing with charges, trials, etc., as well as all other details, the member so affected should immediately notify headquarters.

EQUAL RIGHTS. All members are guaranteed equal rights in employment and as members of the SIU. These rights are clearly set forth in the SIU Constitution and in the contracts which the union has negotiated with the employers. Consequently, no member may be discriminated against because of race, creed, color, sex, national or geographic origin.

If any member feels that he or she is denied the equal rights to which he or she is entitled, the member should notify union headquarters.

SEAFARERS POLITICAL ACTIVITY DONATION — SPAD. SPAD is a separate segregated fund. Its proceeds are used to further its objects and purposes including, but not limited to, furthering the political, social and economic interests of maritime workers, the preservation and furthering of the American merchant marine with improved employment opportunities for seamen and boatmen and the advancement of trade union concepts. In connection with such objects, SPAD supports and contributes to political candidates for elective office. All contributions are voluntary. No contribution may be solicited or received because of force, job discrimination, financial reprisal, or threat of such conduct, or as a condition of membership in the union or of employment. If a contribution is made by reason of the above improper conduct, the member should notify the Seafarers International Union or SPAD by certified mail within 30 days of the contribution for investigation and appropriate action and refund, if involuntary. A member should support SPAD to protect and further his or her economic, political and social interests, and American trade union concepts.

NOTIFYING THE UNION—If at any time a member feels that any of the above rights have been violated, or that he or she has been denied the constitutional right of access to union records or information, the member should immediately notify SIU President Michael Sacco at headquarters by certified mail, return receipt requested. The address is:

Michael Sacco, President
Seafarers International Union

NY Waterway Crews Approve Contract

Group Completes Safety Training at Paul Hall Center

SIU members crew 22 boats operated by NY Waterway, with another ferry under construction.

November was a newsworthy month for 100-plus Seafarers who sail aboard commuter ferries operated by NY Waterway. Their newly approved, four-year contract took effect Nov. 1; and eight Seafarers became the first group from NY Waterway to complete safety training at the Paul Hall Center for Maritime Training and Education, located in Piney Point, Md.

Additionally, construction in Alaska continued on a new high-speed boat scheduled for February delivery. Its capacity will be 149 passengers.

Sailing as captains and deckhands, SIU members crew 22 boats operated by the company. The ferries cover 10 routes between New York and New Jersey. Last year alone they transported more than 7 million passengers.

By a ratio of better than two to one, Seafarers recently okayed the new contract. Serving on the SIU negotiating committee were Captains John Clare and A.J. Rinkus, Deckhands Kevin Lohr and George Schumpp, and SIU Representative Jack Caffey Jr.

"Compared to the old contract, this one is definitely better. It's a positive step for the future," said Lohr, a shop steward at NY Waterway for the past eight years. "I think it is very fair in terms for retirement benefits and allowances for the future. It offers the best Seafarers plan available to include full medical and dental."

The agreement calls for wage increases in each of its four years. It stipulates major gains in the pension benefit and solidifies a seniority system. It also paves the way for members to take courses at the Paul Hall Center.

"This is what the members wanted, and we wouldn't stop until we got it," said Caffey. "The improvements in the pension plan are very substantial. The opportunity to train at Piney Point is a major breakthrough.

NY Waterway mariners last month completed safety training at the Paul Hall Center in Piney Point, Md. Among those Seafarers pictured at the school are (in alphabetical order) Deckhand Adam Ashton, Capt. Thomas Beckedorff, Capt. Robert Capenegro, Deckhand Andrew Galarza, Deckhand Robert Lara, Deckhand Ramon Santiago, Deckhand Wilson Verdesoto and Capt. Frank Virginia. Also pictured are SIU Representative Jack Caffey Jr. and NY Water Operations Manager (and former SIU member) Michael McPhillips.

"We built a stepping stone for the next contract," he continued. "The committee worked hard and stood up for their fellow members."

Crew members wasted no time taking advantage of the training opportunities. Completing basic fire fighting, water survival, CPR and other components in mid-November were Captains Robert Capenegro, Thomas Beckedorff and Frank Virginia, along with Deckhands Adam Ashton, Andrew Galarza, Ramon Santiago, Wilson Verdesoto and Robert Lara.

The school and the company plan to use last month's training as a building block for developing courses specifically tailored for NY Waterway crews.

"The fire fighting was useful," noted Ashton. "You don't often get to use a hand-held, mobile extinguisher. Now, the guys know exactly what it feels like to use one, and the same goes with the hoses."

"This is a bit of an experiment for the school and the company," he added. "I'm sure when the process is more job-specific for NY Waterway, it'll be much better. But this was good, we got a lot of good information."

"It's interesting and it can be a lot of help," said Virginia. "For me, this was all refresher (subject matter). For a deckhand, it probably would be perfect."

Former SIU deep-sea division member Michael McPhillips, NY Waterway's operations manager, sat in on some of the training.

"The school is really impressive. We can get our guys trained the way we want them trained," he said. "The students were very enthusiastic."

Founded in 1986, NY Waterway is the largest private ferry operator in the U.S. In addition to its commuter services, the company offers sightseeing tours around lower Manhattan and up the Hudson River, among others. Its schedule also features ferry service to every home game played by Major League Baseball's New York Yankees and New York Mets.

From a modest beginning in 1986, NY Waterway ferries have become a popular alternative for commuters in New York and New Jersey. The SIU crewed boats transport approximately 20,000 daily commuters and also offer sightseeing tours and lunch cruises.
